

Praised for his deeply felt musicianship and inspiring temperament, Helmuth Reichel Silva is rapidly emerging as one of the most interesting and versatile young conductors of South America. He first came to international attention in 2015 as a finalist at the prestigious Besançon Conducting Competition, subsequently receiving invitations to conduct orchestras in Europe, South America and Asia. Reichel Silva is the winner of the Art Critics Circle of Chile Award for the best performance of the year with the Orquesta Sinfónica Nacional de Chile. Other prizes and accolades include the 2nd Prize at the 6th German Conducting Competition in Stuttgart and the Orchestra Prize at the Jeunesses Musicales Conducting Competition.

Following a highly successful Japan debut in 2017, Reichel Silva will return to the Tokyo Symphony Orchestra at the Muza Kawasaky Symphony Hall in the Season 2019/2020. Other upcoming engagements include debuts with the Nürnberger Symphoniker, Orquesta Filarmonica de Santiago and Orquesta Sinfónica de Concepción as well as returns to the Orquesta Sinfónica Nacional de Chile, Orquesta de Cámara de Chile, Orquesta Sinfónica de La Serena and Orquesta Sinfónica Nacional Juvenil.

The 2018/19 season saw Reichel Silva make his debut with the Südwestdeutsches Kammerorchester, Orquesta Sinfónica del Sodore, Orquesta Filarmónica de Temuco and Orquesta Sinfónica Nacional Juvenil and return to the Orquesta Sinfónica Nacional de Chile, Orquesta de Cámara de Chile and Orquesta Sinfónica de La Serena. Other recent appearances include concerts with the Tokyo Symphony Orchestra, SWR Stuttgart Radio Symphony, Basel Symphony Orchestra, Orchestra Ensemble Kanazawa, Stuttgarter Philharmoniker, Stuttgarter Kammerorchester, Württembergische Philharmonie Reutlingen, Orchestra di Padova e del Veneto and George Enescu Philharmonic. In Chile, his native country, Helmuth Reichel Silva regularly works as guest conductor with all major orchestras.

«He has something special.»

— JONATHAN NOTT

Helmuth Reichel Silva enjoys a highly acclaimed relationship with the Orquesta Sinfónica Nacional de Chile. Following his debut concert with the orchestra in June 2016, he was immediately invited to return as Conductor in Residence at the orchestra's 2017 Summer Concert Series, featuring his debut at one of the most important festivals of South America, the "Semanas Musicales de Frutillar" at the Teatro del Lago, conducting performances of Beethoven Symphony No 9 and Tchaikovsky Symphony No 5. More recently, Reichel Silva was invited to open the Season 2019 with Stravinsky Le Sacre du Printemps and Bartok Concerto for Orchestra.

Committed to the support and development of young musicians, Reichel Silva has served as coach and conductor of the Junge Deutsche Philharmonie since 2015 and has assisted conductors such as Dennis Russell Davies and Ingo Metzmacher.

«He impressed with his deeply felt musical ideas and a technical ability to achieve them.»

— DENNIS RUSSELL DAVIES

Helmuth Reichel Silva is devoted to new and 20th century music by Latin American composers, recording CDs featuring the Chilean composer Esteban Correa with the Orquesta Sinfónica de La Serena. Alongside works by composers such as Ginastera, Villa-Lobos and Revueltas, Helmuth has more than forty works by contemporary Chilean composers in his repertoire.

Born in 1983 in Santiago de Chile, Helmuth Reichel Silva started his musical education at the age of five, attending the Conservatorio Nacional de Música in Santiago, moving later to Germany to continue his studies. An accomplished violinist, he received his Soloist Diploma from the Hochschule für Musik Würzburg and served as violinist in the Stuttgart Philharmonic and Gelsenkirchen Opera House from 2007 to 2010, before going into conducting with Per Borin at the State University of Music and Performing Arts Stuttgart and Sebastian Tewinkel at the State University of Music Trossingen, where he finished his musical training. Helmuth Reichel Silva enjoys a close relationship to Jonathan Nott and has attended masterclasses by Jorma Panula, Yuji Yuasa, Rodolfo Fischer and Yuuko Amanuma. He was laureate of the Dirigentenpodium Baden-Württemberg Conducting Program, which gives young conductors the opportunity to work with leading orchestras in Germany.

„Temporada 2019 – Triunfal Inauguración“

Author: Jaime Torres – Gran Valparaíso [20-04-2019]

(On Bartok's Concerto for Orchestra)

„With total authority, Reichel Silva managed to unravel the intricate Bartokian discourse, achieving a top-level response. (...) With clarity, he obtains a gallery of individual and overall achievements. Magnificent indications of character, emphatic tempi plus a meticulous work on textures, timbres and colours. An unappealable artistic triumph. (...) Undoubtedly, this performance validated Helmuth Reichel Silva once again as a conductor of great talent and musical maturity, obtaining maximum performance from the orchestra.“

„Helmuth Reichel Silva, Conductor“

Author: Walter Krumbach – El Cóndor [15-04-2019]

„Under Helmuth Reichel Silva's baton, the well-known sounded completely new, literally unheard-of.“

„Stravinsky y sus huellas“

Author: Gonzalo Saavedra – El Mercurio [24-03-2019]

(On Stravinsky's Le Sacre du Printemps)

„His pulse is so exact and his attention to detail so effective, that he made the orchestra sound like never before with this work. (...) His conception is strict, but it leaves a personal mark in the extended silences, full of mystery, in the contrast of tempi, as well as the well-built crescendi, with a dynamic controlled at all times. (...) With a secure leadership, the orchestra played rigorous and inspired. (...) A mature and precise interpretation, a complete success.“

„Futter für die Seele: Helmuth Reichel Silva dirigiert SWDKO“

Author: Sandra Pfallin – Pforzheimer Zeitung [15-02-2019]

„Already at the beginning it becomes clear: he burns for the one thing, has devoted himself to the music with body and soul. (...) He conducts with temperament, never exalted, never overflowing, but entirely at the service of music.“

„Sinfonieorchester MH Lübeck zu Gast“

Author: Susanne Wittorf – Kieler Nachrichten [14-10-2018]

(On Richard Strauss's Don Juan)

„With a differentiated conducting, the 35-year-old exceptional conductor from Chile succeeded in working out all the nuances of the three pieces presented. His interpretation of Richard Strauss' Don Juan, based on a poem by Nikolaus Lenau, was literally bursting with sensual power and vitality.“

„Helmuth Reichel Silva y la Orquesta Sinfónica Nacional Juvenil: Como profesionales“

Author: Jaime Donoso – El Mercurio [09-10-2018]

(On Tchaikovsky's 4th Symphony)

„We are in front of a conductor who has very clear ideas that, with a master hand, he knows how to transmit to the orchestra and to the audience. The resounding ovations did not only come from the audience, but also from the members of the orchestra themselves, who enthusiastically expressed their satisfaction with the work done by him.“

„Un sólido director para una niña fueguina“

Author: Jaime Donoso – El Mercurio [16-07-2018]

(On Beethoven's 4th Symphony“)

„These prodigies were revealed in all their originality thanks to the impeccable leadership of Reichel Silva, who with intelligence and full authority built a memorable interpretation.“
